1. The following Chinese Communist units are in the Fuchin (131-59, 47-14), Suipin (132-01, 47-21), Tungchiang (132-29, 47-39) and Ilan (129-34, 46-20) areas. three infantry divisions (which include) two garrison brigades, one artillery regiment (previously reported), one engineer battalion and several Peace Preservation Corps units of 300 men each. The total strength is about 96,000 men.
2. The munition factory in Chiamussu has been operating since July 1946. Originally there were about 640 laborers, 40% of whom were Japanese. The number of laborers has now increased to 2,700. Laborers are paid $700 (Communist tungpei) daily plus certain rations of grain. The factory operates day and night and produces hand grenades and rifles.
3. In March 1946 the Communists conscripted about 30,000 civilians to build defenses along the east bank of the Sunmari from Chinghaishan, 25 miles north of Chiamussu, through Tangwangho (129-53, 46-42) and Hsianglan (?) to Shaho-tzu (128-46, 46-53).
